Injured jockeys released from hospital after falls: Report

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The two jockeys injured in a spill on Thursday have been released from the hospital, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal. Irving Moncada and Emmanuel Giles both were carted off via ambulance after falling on Thursday afternoon.

Moncada's agent told the newspaper that Moncada had been knocked unconscious in the spill, and only regained consciousness at the University of Louisville hospital. After a battery of tests, he was released Thursday night.

Giles injured his shoulder and spine, and was awaiting X-rays and more testing, according to the report.

Both horses, Territoriality and Vostra, were uninjured.

A packed Churchill Downs for the Derby \ Healy Racing Previous Next

IT'S that time of year. The First Saturday in May. The Kentucky Derby. And it's time for our annual "Why he'll win. Why he won't win" for the 150th Kentucky Derby. (Race is live on VirginTwo at 11.57pm tonight).

If you're checking our notes from last year...

Mage. Why he'll win. Talented, low-mileage colt who could be improving. Hall of Famer Javier Castellano has every big race on his plaque except for the Derby. Why he won't win. Just three races under his belt and has yet to stave off Forte. Well, he didn't have to stave off Forte. The favorite scratched on the morning of the race and Mage had his day.
